A MESSAGE FROM TIGGER

Hi Pals, Merry Christmas to you all. I hope that with all of this stop start lockdown you are all able to spend some of your time with friends and family. Even if it means by video call to ensure social distancing.

By now we should have some idea if the vaccines are being given to those that need them and 2021 can start to be some sort of reality. New or old I hope it is out and about with friends and family and not through a form of virtual reality.

Merry Christmas to you all pals and have a happy the New Year. Nose bump to you

News from Doris - The Roving Reporter

Hey pals, How are we all after the dreaded fireworks in November?

Reading my friends twitter feeds it seems that some of you had to suffer the noise for many weeks. Here in Brighton celebrations have always been very condensed into a few days, which is lucky for me!

As we live near the beach we get a lot set off close but this year, as usual, just for a few days. I hid in the bedroom for most of it, Elaine had sprayed my cuddly caterpillar with calming spray so I was suitably tranquil. Diwali was obviously after Guy Fawkes night, but sadly I think that the rain and storms stopped any celebrations. And Covid, of course, stopped any inside!

So as I write we're half way through the second lockdown and it's all quite dull.

We're behaving so I am missing my grandpops and all the friends that usually visit.

I manage a sniff up the road to the pet shop though... as exciting as it gets!

Hopefully by the time you read this it'll full on til Christmas.

I bloomin love Christmas! Elaine has already ordered some extra outdoor lights to cheer us up.

Several gardens on the road have already decorated their gardens (in November) so we're joining in!

Being indoors a lot I've helped with the cooking and baking. I'm particularily partial to anything made with butter. Rather annoyingly I'm not allowed most of it though.

It appears that reaching the grand age of 11 means a diet.... who knew?! I need to get some hemp down my chops pals so that I can run off some calories. And I think Elaine needs to do the same bol.

Anyway, until next time amigos..

YODA AND CHEEZLT'S SCRATCHING POST

Hello furriends!
Goodness Gracious!
It is already holiday time. We hope all our furriends have a great holiday season no matter what they and their humans celebrate.

Since humans aren't supposed to travel this year for the holidays, we think that they should have to spend special, quality time with their furry, feathered, scaly companions. They should, also, have to buy us all lots of extra special presents...especially since we have had to put up with them being home more, and, therefore, invading our personal space and personal time.

It's so hard going to the bathroom in private anymore. We know we're great and fantastic. But, even the biggest celebrities like to poop in peace.

As for our holiday, Momma isn't going to be putting up a tree this year. Actually, she hasn't put one up for the last three years.

It is so disappointing not having extra stuff to destroy. It's like she doesn't want us to have any fun. What a horrible parent she is (MOL)! She deprives us of all the joys of cat-ness

Wow, we have had lots of conflicting statements, feelings, and emotions in these few paragraphs.
We're cats. We can do that.
That's just how we are.

We hope you all have a wonderful Meowliday time! Whether you celebrate Catmas or Pupmas.(or anything else), we hope it's fun!

Til Next Month (and year), Yoda & CheezIt (and the others)

Dusty's Diary

Hi Pals, I've been enjoying running around the woods keeping all the local squirrels on their toes as they try to burry their food stashes for winter.

I've also been helping to keep the woods tidy, by moving the big sticks out of the way and carrying them with me on walkies.

My favourite stick recently was more of a tree trunk the human said.

I tried to get her to throw it, but she kept saying something about her back.

I couldn't understand, carrying tree trunks around keeps me nice and strong. I even tried to gnaw it down, but it was still too big! It was one of my best finds yet, and much to the amusement of numerous other people on our walk I managed to carry it a long way!

Until next time. Have a pawsome month Dusty

IN THE KITCHEN

Article By: Fred and Tess

Our good friends Skye and Sparky's Mum is vegan, and we thought we would try a vegan cake they can all eat. Mum said the topping to this cake is yummy and she might turn it into a frozen yoghurt (she had better make her own and leave our topping alone! BOL).

Skye & Sparky's Mum's Cake

Ingredients:

230g plain flour
240ml nut milk 160ml maple syrup
150g pumpkin, mashed
50g coconut oil melted
1tsp cider vinegar
1tsp bicarb of soda
1/2tsp baking powder
1/2 tsp cinnamon
Pinch of salt

Icing – 300g oat yoghurt 80ml maple syrup

Method:

- 1. Preheat oven to 180 degrees and grease two 7in cake tins (we used coconut oil as it softens our paws, and they smell yummy! BOL).
- 2. Melt the coconut oil then mix it with the milk, pumpkin, syrup and vinegar.
- 3. Add the flour, cinnamon, bicarb of soda, baking powder and salt. Using an electric whisk, mix everything together to make a batter.
- 4. Pour the batter into the cake tins and spread the batter evenly in the tin.
- 5. Bake for 20-25 mins in the oven until a toothpick comes out clean. Leave the cakes to cool in the tins for 10 mins and then remove them from the tins and leave them on a cooling tray until cold.

6. Make the icing – stir the syrup and yoghurt together and divide it between the top of both cakes. Spread the icing on the top of the cakes then place one of the cakes on top of the other.

Storage:

Keep the cake in the fridge and it will last for 5-7 days

WALLABIES IN THE UK

After seeing a video of a wallaby bouncing along a road on social media recently, so I did some researched to see if anyone had lost one.

I was really surprised at what I found.

There are documented colonies of wild red-necked wallabies around the United Kingdom.

Red-necked wallabies have been present in Britain for more than a century, originally being imported for zoos and private collections where they were popular attractions.

However they also proved to be adept escape artists that were adaptable enough to survive in the British countryside.

In Scotland, Inchconnachan, an island in Loch Lomond has a population of wallabies. Lady Arran Colquhoun introduced them in the 1920s.

In Staffordshire, a breeding colony established itself after breaking loose from a private zoo in Leek, Staffordshire in the 1930s.

Many were intentionally released during the second world war, as keepers and collectors had other priorities and possibly due to food rationing and shortages.

There are other colonies around the UK.

In the 1970's it was thought that the escaped and wild born ones had hit their peak and there were no sightings for a number of years. It was generally thought they had died off due to cold climate.

In the mid 2000's, perhaps coincidentally when social media was starting to have a bigger attraction in the UK, there were one or two sightings that appeared in local news, but no real increase of sightings. Although a few interested scientists were curious to discover if there were colonies still alive in the UK.

In 2009, newspapers reported wallaby sightings with pictures as proof.

Other wallaby colonies exist in the UK, including reliable reports around Lincolnshire, London, Norfolk, Scotland and Sussex, Wild wallabies continue to be recorded across Britain though, with the occasional sighting in a garden, country lane, or along a motorway making local and sometimes national news.

Surprisingly, apart from the occasional news article no one seems to be able to spot them, or if they do, they are not making it public.

It may be due to wallables being very small and very similar to rabbits from a distance.

Here is a brief description of each:

Rabbits:

Rabbits are grey/brown and grow to around 8 to 20 inches high/long (depending if they are lying down or sitting up). The Males are called Bucks and the females are called Does and the young are called Kits.

Rabbits usually live around 8 to 12 years. They can leap 3 metres forward from a stationary position.

Rabbits live in underground holes that have many entrances and exits called burrows.

They live in groups which are called fluffles, but most humans call them colonies.

Rabbit

Hares:

Hares are Grey/brown and grow to around 12 to 24 inches high/long. Hares usually live around 4 years.

The Males are called Bucks and the females are called Does and the young are called Kits. They can leap forward 3 metres forward from a stationary position.

Hares live in nests they make in fields from the log grass that they shape around themselves. They make a new form every night, or if disturbed they can move and make another one. It is called a form.

Hares tend to live alone but if there was a gathering it would be called a drove.

Hare

Wallaby:

Wallabies are Grey/brown and grow to around 12 to 24 inches high/long. The males are called Bucks or Jacks and the females are called Does or Jills. The young are called Joeys.

Wallabies usually live around 9 years. They can leap forward 8 metres from a stationary position.

Wallabies live around shrubs and rocky areas.

Wallabies live in groups, it would be called a mob, court or troupe.

Wallaby

I have included some pictures for you to see the difference, but let's face it, if you saw a couple of small grey/brown animals near to a hedgerow that had long ears and could sit on their back legs and 'sit up' to get a better look at their surroundings, you would just assume it was a rabbit or a hare.

Rabbits, hares and wallabies have a healthy fear of humans so getting a clear look at one is very rare. In face most humans have only ever had a rare glimpse of a rabbit while driving through country roads. ..or was it a hare or a wallaby?

There have been more sightings in late summer. Is that because the wallaby is more active or is it due to humans being more active because of the better weather?

Scientists have been playing spot the wallaby for a number of years. To date they have established they are out there and have some general roundabout idea of what area could hold a mob of them, but that is as specific as they can get when dealing with these elusive animals.

Scientists want to discover if they are affecting their surrounding environment. Although as their main food source is similar to rabbits and hares, I am not sure how they will establish any impact.

Scientists want to also establish if wallabies carry any diseases. They can speculate, but until they know for sure, they are just guessing.

Personally, if they have been living and surviving in the wild for over 100 years and only a pawful of humans have spotted them in all of that that time, I say carry on hopping pals!

Honey bees contribute directly to local food production and make a very important contribution, through pollination, to crop production and the wider environment.

The Department for Environment, Food & Rural Affairs (Defra) and the Welsh Government have recently published a Healthy Bees Plan 2030 to protect and improve the health of honey bees in England and Wales.

This plan set out 4 key points.

They are:

- 1. Effective bio security and good standards of husbandry, to minimise pest and disease risks and so improve the sustainability of honey bee populations.
- 2. Enhanced skills and production capability/capacity of beekeepers and bee farmers.

HONEY BEES

- 3. Sound science and evidence underpinning the actions taken to support bee health.
- 4. Increased opportunities for knowledge exchange and partnership working on honey bee health and wider pollinator needs.

The Healthy Bees Plan 2030 was developed in consultation with bee health stakeholders and is aimed at sustaining the health of honey bees and beekeeping in England and Wales over the next decade.

Thriving plants and wildlife are part of the Government's 25
Year Environment Plan and one of the six environmental outcomes the government has committed to delivering through the new Environmental Land Management (ELM) scheme.

Helping farmers to provide rich habitat for pollinators is one way in which ELM will help deliver the goals of the 25 Year Environment Plan and support farmers to produce world-class food in a sustainable way.

The Government's Nature Recovery Network will restore 75% of protected sites as well as creating or restoring 500,000 hectares of additional wildlife-rich habitat.

The National Bee Unit maintains a voluntary database of active beekeepers called BeeBase.

Beekeepers that are not registered with BeeBase are strongly encouraged to get in touch with the NBU online to register with BeeBase for free. Registration provides the beekeeper with a free visit from their local bee inspector and access to a wide range of information on their craft.

INTERVIEW WITH - SPARKY

Tell me a little bit about yourself.

I'm Sparky and I'm a 10 year old rescued Springer Spanner. Mum and dad say I'm a typical Springer; lively, greedy, adorable and pawsitively bonkers.

How many humans/ siblings do you have and long have you had them?

I live with my mum, dad and fursister Skye who's also a rescued Springer and I've been with them almost a year. I'll be celebrating my first Gotcha Day on 25th January and paws crossed mum and dad will throw me a pawty.

Do you work? If so where/ what do you do?

I'm now retired but before I was rescued my occupation was a stud dog until I was dumped in a forest because I was no longer up to the job.

I eventually ended up being rescued by Spaniel Aid, who placed me in a foster home, with a great couple caring for me until my pawfect, furever home was found and I've never looked back since.

If you could choose your name what would it be?

I'm happy with Sparky - I prefer it to Scooby Doo which is mum and dad's nickname for me because I can get a little overexcited at times.

What is your favourite food?

I love fish and chips and one time I made off with dad's fish from his plate when he went to answer the door but I was very good and dropped it on the floor when told to do so. Dad still ate the fish despite having been in my mouth and on the floor. Fortunately it had landed ketchup-side up, BOL!

Where is your favourite place to be?

Being at home with mum, dad and Skye. I enjoy walking up the hills where we live. Dad and I will walk for miles and miles, just the two of us.

Skye has bad arthritis in her hip so sadly can't manage these long hill walks.

What is your favourite way to entertain yourself (annoy your humans)? Probably gnawing my filled bone, then picking it up and dropping it on the floor; the sudden loud noise always gives mum and dad a terrible fright, heh heh. I occasionally sneak the bone onto mum and dad's bed and leave fragments of bone all over the bed covers, much to mum's horror. BOL!

What is your greatest accomplishment?

Being on the front page in the sports section of a national newspaper. But mum and dad would never have known about it had it not been for a neighbour who spotted me. BOL!!!

During the lockdown dad arranged for a cut-out of me to be placed in the stand at Easter Road in Edinburgh, Hibernian FC's ground. It means I can get to see myself on the telly when Hibs are playing at home, and surprisingly mum now watches the occasional game - even if it is just to see me. BOL!

What is your next goal in life?

To de-stuffify all my stuffed toys on Christmas Day and Skye's too.

If you could be/do anything for a day, what would it be?

Being able to sleep a whole night under the covers in mum and dad's bed without either of them realising I'm there until it's time to get up. So far I've only managed half a night before being ejected. Hrrumpff!

Finally and most importantly...What was your human's most embarrassing moment?

Not so long ago I had a tummy upset which gave me the runs.

Mum took me to the veterinarians as it wasn't clearing up but when the vet was taking my temperature I left him a little 'present' to clean up.

Unfortunately Skye came down with it as well and funnily enough the same thing happened with her when her temperature was taken.

Poor Skye but it did make me feel less embarrassed, BOL!!!

REPAWT ON THE STREET DOGS OF BRIGHTON

Doris the lurcher here on a roving report. Well, roving as far as Elaine's volunteering at Sussex Homeless Support.

I thought I'd give you an update on the street dogs of Brighton as it's winter preparation time.

Buddy the Staffie has given me the lowdown on his fellow pooches and how they're getting on.

He's having a great time, as ever, being carted around in his bicycle side car! Buddy has a new coat, but to be honest he wears one all year.

Clara the JRT has got herself a new jumper but was horrified when she realised she'd also have to have an annual vaccine, bless her. Luckily the vets had treats and are always up for a cuddle.

The big friendly Mastiff girl ordered a new lead as she'd lost hers and was on a piece of string. She's old now so would never run off but her owner wanted her to look smart.

And Bryan the Labrador spent most of his time trying to steal food from the soup kitchen.... as usual.

So basically all the street dogs are fit and well, they are very much loved.

ps I have changed the dogs names but all exist and are exactly like that!

CARISBROOKE CASTLE - ISLE OF WIGHT

Free for EH members

Open: Seasonal - See website

About:

Roman occupation in the area around Carisbrooke has been suggested but never proved. The earliest certain use was for a pagan Anglo-Saxon cemetery of the 6th century. Three graves were discovered during excavations.

In about 1000 this prominent hilltop, dominating the centre of the island, became the site of a rectangular fortification, formed of an earthen bank, later faced with a stone wall, and containing large timber buildings.

This was probably an Anglo-Saxon burh (or fortress/fortified settlement), built to provide a refuge against Viking raids.

Dog Friendly:

Dogs on leads are allowed, but not in museum. Assistance dogs welcome.

Parking:

Parking charges apply to non-members. Parking free for members. Parking for approx. 100 cars situated 50-100 metres from site. This car park may get full on event days or peak viewing times. Additional off site parking located in the town of Carisbrooke (not managed by English Heritage).

Facilities:

Food And Drink - Delightful tea room serving a selection of locally produced hot and cold food including sandwiches, cakes, hot and cold beverages. The tea room closes one hour before the castle's advertised closing time.

Picnic Area Shop Toilets Museum Exhibition Gardens

Notes:

Well house and ground floor of museum are accessible to visitors in wheelchairs. Due to the steep stairs the wall walk, and the upper floor of museum, are inaccessible to wheelchair users.

Two flights of stairs to upper floor of museum (with handrails).

Seating and rest points are dotted around the grounds. Pathways are gravel, tarmac and grass, and are fairly flat. There are some sheer drops, please mind your step.
