SICKNESS BUG AFFECTING DOGS IN THE UK

There has been a worry that there is a strange sickness bug spreading throughout the dog community in the UK.

Some are reporting doom and gloom while others are just downplaying the whole thing. The main problem is that social media and communication has increased exponentially over the last few years. So animals in one part of the world can mention being ill with something and other dogs in a completely different part of the world can report the same symptoms. So does that make is a superbug or just two isolated illnesses ?

So is there a super bug affecting dogs?

To be honest, the professionals are not sure yet. There are cases of a more determined sickness bug being reported in the UK, but as for being more reports of a 'super bug', there is just not enough information or evidence in reported cases.

The symptoms start off looking like a very normal bout of gastroenteritis, or stomach bug.

Gastroenteritis is a term used to describe an infection or irritation to the gut.

It is very hard to decide in the early days if or why we have an upset stomach, lets face it, the moment our humans turn their back we can get hold of and swallow all manner of weird and not so wonderful things.

When is an upset stomach more than an upset stomach?

Normally when we have 'normal' stomach upsets we may be sick once or twice, be a bit loose in the poop bag department , off our food and just generally feeling sorry for ourselves for about 24 to 48 hours.

When should we seek medical assistance?

First of all your humans know you better than anyone, so if they feel you are not yourself they should be able to make that decision.

Similarly, if you are already on medication for a long term illness then medical advice should be sought earlier.

Is there any difference to watch for in the current sickness being reported?

There are some points to look out for so that your humans can get medical advice or assistance as soon as possible.

Things to watch out for:

- Projectile vomiting about 5 times in 12 hours.
Not just our normal barf from when we have eaten grass or something too quickly, they mean proper putting our back into it barfing.
- diarrhoea .
Not a bit soft and squidgy, more bum gravy type.
- Tiredness, dullness and just plain feeling sorry for ourselves.
- Loss of appetite.
- When the sickness /symptoms have lasted more than 48 hours.

What should we do if we think we have got the symptoms above?

Get in touch with your vet for advice. We may need antiviral or anti sickness medication or even antibiotics. If we get really dehydrated, we may even need to go on a drip.

The good news is that all of the dogs I have heard about have gone on to make a full recovery. So do not be unduly worried and make sure you look after yourselves.

A MESSAGE FROM TIGGER

Hi Pals,

It is hard to believe that it has been five whole years since I crossed paths with my humans and adopted them.

It has not been an easy path as I was so sadly let down by my previous experiences with humans. There were even times I thought I would never trust humans again.

All I can say is that I am so pleased I adopted my humans as they saw from the very start that I needed a lot more time, patience and care than most dogs. Even with that prospect they decided to allow me to adopt them.

We have had some really rocky times, and my humans have had to put in loads of patience, hard work, understanding, training and love.

After all of that I not only tolerate my humans, I actually trust them with my life.

So for those dogs that have problems, issues or depression due to negative experiences with humans. There are humans out there for you that will love you. Life will be hard. It will be a long road. Some issues may never be resolved and life may have to be adapted to avoid certain circumstances.

The trick is to never give up.

Nose bump to you

NEWS FROM DORIS - THE ROVING REPORTER

Dull old winter means firing up the motorhome and tootling off for a dull old winter abroad! Why we don't just go straight to southern Spain I don't know but we're in Belgium. It's a beautiful, organised county full of cycle paths and animal bridges but it's cold like the UK. In fact the weather in our first two weeks has been pretty dismal. Nevertheless I am a roving reporter so am happy.

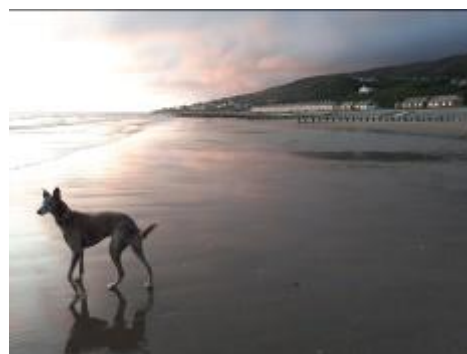

We drove straight from home, through the tunnel under the sea and straight across France

(a few miles) arriving in Kortrijk by teatime. Or beertime as it's known in our van. Kortrijk is a small city standing on the river Lys, it has medieval towers, cobbled streets and a huge pedestrianised area. A large central square has a bell tower and many bars, including a dog friendly curry house (needless to say my two were very pleased) I really enjoyed my jaunt around especially when locals asked me if I was a greyhound 'like the American buses'! From what I saw, the people of Kortrijk only have golden retrievers.

We initially stayed in Kortrijk for a few days so that we could visit Lille in France. The train was only half an hour and so easy. Obviously it poured with rain but Lille is fabulous. Much larger than we expected but a maze of cobbled old roads and baroque like buildings. It's a really cool place and I would highly recommend for a weekend. Again doggy friendly bars.

Life in Belgium is very civilised and calm, the roads and nights quiet but it was soon time to tootle through to Holland. I've never been to the Netherlands so really looking forward to it. Clogs and

YODA AND CHEEZLT'S SCRATCHING POST

Hello to all our furry (and non furry) pals!

We have been keeping busy helping Momma around the house. Someone has to help her...because she has been really lazy lately.

Momma's, also, not always "playing with a full deck", if you know what we mean.

That underground thing that Momma says is a basement has been getting water in it a lot from the rain and snow that we have been having lately.

Momma gets all mad about it and complains. We don't know what she's complaining about... it's fun down there with the big water puddles.

We have discovered that water is fun....when you know that you can't be submerged in it! When Momma comes downstairs and sees us running, jumping, and playing in the puddles, she always says, "Get out of the water! It might be dirty! Don't drink that! Stay out of the water because you're going to make a mess upstairs!"

When she says not to make a mess, we like to run by her going up the stairs. It's GREAT because then she sees little wet paw prints going up the stairs.

That really gets her going! It's so funny. It's great. It's fun getting her all worked up! Lucky for us, Momma has a landlord that is slow at fixing things. So we may have our little Kitty Pool down in the basement during the summer when it's super hot outside.

Well, not that we go outside at all to actually physically feel the heat. But, we can use our little imaginations and pretend.

Til Next Month,
Yoda & Cheezlt

Somebody's Doodle

- By Nikki & Richard Attree

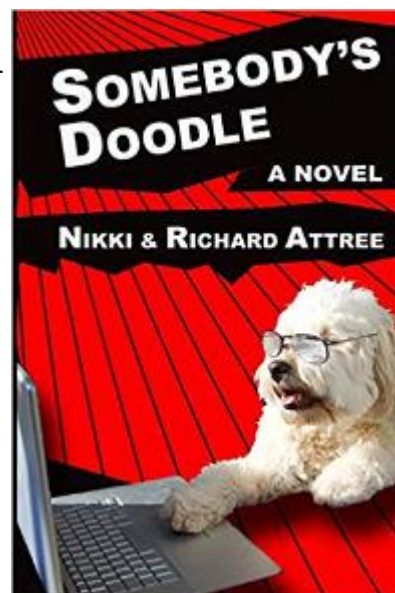

When petty criminals 'Flash Harry' Smith and Jack ('The Lad') Jones start nicking dogs, they soon realise they've bitten off more than they can chew ...

Their victim, Elizabeth Parker-Smyth, is a high-flying movie producer with a Grand Design of a house and a designer dog to match. Their hostages, Gizmo and Doodle, are the co-stars of her next film: 'Nobody's Poodle'. Their nemesis, Annie Capello, is a quirky, big-hearted pet detective, who tracks the dognappers through cyberspace and finds herself entangled in their shenanigans.

Then there are the two pairs of star-crossed lovers. One couple may be human and the other canine, but they share similar memories of a whirlwind romance: "We'll always have Stoke Newington."

SOMEBODY'S DOODLE is a fast-moving, heady mix of crime, humour, romance, and some woofastic dogs. As it races towards the climax, the human protagonists search for truth and reconciliation and glimpse what we can all learn from Man's Best Friend.

Nobody's Poodle

- By Nikki & Richard Attree

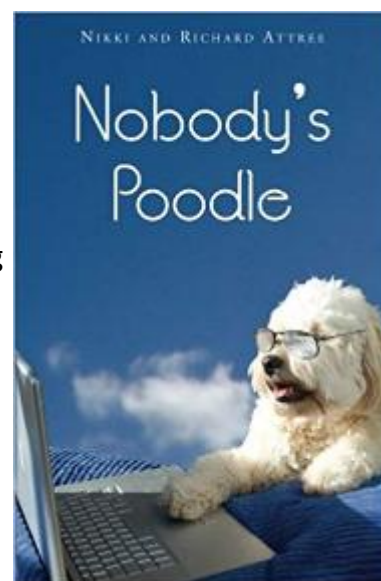

When loveable Labradoodle, Gizmo, is uprooted from his home in cold, grey, muddy England to start a new life in Tenerife, he's stoic. But just when he's learnt the local woof-speak and survived an out-of-botty experience at the vet he's abandoned on the mean streets of Costa del Scorchio.

Every day's a struggle. His soulmate, Katie, is snatched from him. He's captured and nearly torn apart in El Bastardo's dog-fighting ring ... But Gizmo's a survivor. He's a spokesmutt for the underdog and a canine philosopher.

You'll learn how his universe works. How dogs invented the internet ('SmellNet'), email ('SmellMail') and wifi ('Whiffy'). And you'll celebrate their dogged, Zen-like stoicism in the face of human stupidity, indifference, and cruelty.

With a cast of wonderful woofers and a story that's the mutt's nuts, NOBODY'S POODLE is the dog's danglies of a book!

IN THE KITCHEN

Article By: Fred and Tess

We thought our baking needed some fine tuning on the presentation, so we ordered some doggy cutters (sorry for using your bank card Mum! BOL!).

Apple Paw Puffs

Ingredients:

240g white flour
60g applesauce (sugar free especially for spaniels, we are hyper enough! BOL!)
60ml vegetable oil
180ml water
30ml honey
1 egg
1/2 tbsp of ground ginger
1/2 tsp bicarbonate of soda

Method:

1. Preheat oven at 180 fan.
2. In a large bowl, mix all ingredients together. Knead the dough on a floured surface and then roll out the dough to 1/2 inch thickness.
3. Using our brand new paw cutters, cut shapes and place the shapes on a baking sheet 1 inch apart.
4. Bake for 10 minutes then turn the oven off and leave the puffs in the oven for 1 hour to harden.

These will keep for two weeks in a sealed tub in the fridge or freeze for future use (though defrost them first, BOL!).

Storage:

We don't know how long they keep fresh as they don't last long before they are down the bone shoot!

NEW ANIMAL BEHAVIOURIST

My name is Lorraine Bell and I run Bell's Animal Behaviour & Training Consultancy.

My background is in the animal behaviour, welfare and training field and I have spent the last 16 years as an Undergraduate Lecturer specialising in these subjects.

This also included problem behaviour management for companion/pet animals.

My qualifications included:

- PGDip CABC (Companion Animal Behaviour Consultancy)
- PGCE (Education)
- BSc (Hons) Animal Management.

I am based in the North Wales area, in the Denbighshire area, but will travel further afield, however this would normally incur a travel expense.

My client base is mainly companion animals and their humans, but I also work with farm and captive zoo species.

I offer professional advice on animal behaviour problems. Working with client to modify pet behaviour.

Common problems seen in pets:

CATS:
Inappropriate /urine Spraying / Marking.

DOGS:
Jumping up, lead pulling, poor recall

PARROTS:
Feather pulling, aggression

Rabbits:
Fur pulling, aggression towards owner

Depending upon the problem behaviour and causes discussed, an initial management plan is verbally explained. This further leads to a subsequent comprehensive, written report where management of the animal and behaviour problems are fully explained.

A consultancy normally lasts between 1 and 2 hours where a full history is taken on the first appointment.

Also offered, depending upon the level of consultancy package chosen, is a 3-month post consultancy support period which is given via telephone or in writing.

I also run puppy socialisation and training group classes or individual classes, adult dog training and socialisation classes also on an individual or group basis.

The adult classes are designed to help with problems such as dog to dog reactivity, dog to human reactivity, lead pulling, recall etc.

They are also designed to give your dog more confidence and to teach them so more advanced and fun behaviours.

Please contact me if you are experiencing problems with your animal/s or you would just like to advance yours and your animal's training.

PD JAY - THE THIN BLUE PAW

Hi Pals ,

I am just giving you all a short update on my progress so far. You will all be pleased to know I am doing well and have bonded well with my handler Edd.

Time has flown and it should not be too long before I find out when Edd and I will be tested prior to our licensing as a Police Dog and handler.

Until next time – bye for now,
Jay

TIGGER INVESTIGATES...MUZZLES

Picture the scene, you are walking down the street and suddenly in front of you there is a human walking in lead with their dog. The dog has a muzzle on, what is your first thought?

That is why so many dogs are embarrassed or feel they are pre judged if they have to wear a muzzle.

First of all lets look at types of muzzles. Well I could write a whole book on muzzle, so I will generalise to two actual types. Day to day use muzzles and short use muzzles.

Short use muzzles are the material cone sort of shaped ones that hold the dog's mouth closed.

These should only be used when a situation arises where humans need to get near to a dog. Such as emergency care at a veterinary practice, during bandage changes or nail clipping etc. These muzzles must not be used for a prolonged length of time as the dog cannot breathe or cool down properly, and is unable to eat or drink.

Day to day use muzzles has the greatest range of models and types. They are all basically basket type muzzles that allow a dog to open their mouth and breathe and cool down properly. They can also eat and drink while wearing them.

Day to day muzzles range so much as they are made from various materials and depending on the breed of dog, can be in all shapes and sizes to fit the dog's mouth.

Why would a dog need to wear a muzzle?

- Some countries require dogs to wear muzzles until they have passed a behaviour course to assess them. This does not mean the dog is dangerous while it is muzzled, it just shows it has not finished its assessment.

- Breed specific muzzling is a government requirement to muzzle all dogs of a certain breed, regardless of the individual dog actually being aggressive or not.

- Illness can be a reason for wearing a muzzle. Perhaps the dog has a wound they cannot resist giving a sly lick or nibble to when the human is distracted.

- Scavengers have to wear muzzles as they tend to snack on anything and everything they can get their paws on. In some cases the more rotten the better. Apart from being a disgusting habit it can lead on to sickness and rather unsavoury poop bag episodes.

- Poop eaters. Well what can I say, it is self explanatory what they do. They feast down on all manner of poop. From rabbit droppings all the way to horse poop, with a quick munch of everything else they can get to munch on.

- Special diets dogs sometimes wear muzzles because some humans make it their life's work to shove random treats and foodstuff into strange dog's mouths without checking for food sensitivity or even permission.

- Over excitable playing dogs. Some dogs get over excited while playing in a group and may play nip. The nip itself may not cause injury, but it could escalate things with another dog that takes exception to being nipped. So a muzzle is used to err on the side of caution.

- Nervous dogs could wear a muzzle. They could be nervous of noise, crowds, traffic, other dogs... the list is endless. This does not mean the dog is aggressive. It just means that they are frightened.

- Finally the 'aggressive' dogs. It will be a rare day when you actually come across a real life aggressive dog. Their humans will make sure their whole life and walks out and about will be away from most common places to find other dogs and their humans. Their whole life will be dedicated to ensuring a safe environment for the dog and ensure there is adequate safeguards in place.

The section most humans think of, but it is probably the least likely reason. So please remember, just because a dog wears a muzzle doesn't mean it's nasty!

One of my good pals, Fergal, wears a muzzle. Here is a brief word from him about muzzles.

As many of you know that I, Fergal, wear a muzzle when out in public, I get scared of all sorts of things, mainly off lead dogs, cyclists and joggers, my reaction to it all is to bark and lunge, so I wear a muzzle just in case a dog runs at me, or a jogger or cyclist surprises us, better to be safe than sorry.

Please educate your children without telling them that a dog in a muzzle is nasty, maybe say it's scared of things, or that it eats poo!

As I sell many muzzles to dogs that aren't reactive, they just eat poo!

Also if you see an on lead dog (muzzled or unmuzzled) and the human asks if you would mind calling your dog back and holding their collar or putting them on lead, please respect this, they aren't doing it to be a pain, they are doing it to protect their dog and stop everyone's walk from being ruined by an incident that could be avoided. We don't care that your dog is friendly or won't come near, we care about our dog and it not getting stressed or upset.

Here are some pictures of me with and without my muzzle.

INTERVIEW WITH - NOVAK

Tell me a bit about yourself.

My name is Novak and I'm a 20 month-old working line German shepherd.

My favourite thing is my yellow ball. But I also really like presents..

How many siblings do you have, and how long have you had them?

I've got one brother, his name is Kofi and he's 10. He was here when I arrived. I had another brother but he went to somewhere called the bridge last week.

He hasn't come back yet.

Do you work? If so, what do you do?

I've got several jobs!

My main job is as a secret agent. I go on missions and do lots of spy training. I can't really reveal any more than that as a matter of national security.

My other job is being a demo dog for mummy at her classes. I demonstrate with Mummy so the little puppies know what to do.

And then my weekend job is training in a sport called IGP. I have to do tracking, obedience and protection. I get to bite the badman in protection and that's definitely my favourite thing!

If you could choose your name what would it be?

I was going to be called Jedi but mummy changed it to Novak at the last minute and I'm pleased because I like my name. My full name is Agent Novak Super Spy and I don't think I'd want to change it because then nobody would know who I am.

What is your favourite food?

liver cake and tripe.

Where is your favourite place to be?

My favourite place is on the training field biting bad man. But I also like the beach

What is your favourite way to entertain yourself (annoy your humans)?

I love playing tug!! And if there are any humans near me I'm constantly seeing if they want to play tug with me by pushing my ball at their hand. I'm sure that's not at all annoying and they love it as much as I do though.

What is your greatest accomplishment?

In November this year I passed my BH which is the first qualification for my sport. I had to do loads of things listening to Mummy for ages!

What is your next goal in life?

I want to pass the next qualification and then I will have letters after my name! I would also like to be involved in a mission involving the queen but that is all top secret and I can't talk about it .

If you could be/do anything for a day, what would it be?

I would like to be invisible for the day! Boy that would really help my spy training.

Finally and most importantly...What was your human's most embarrassing moment?

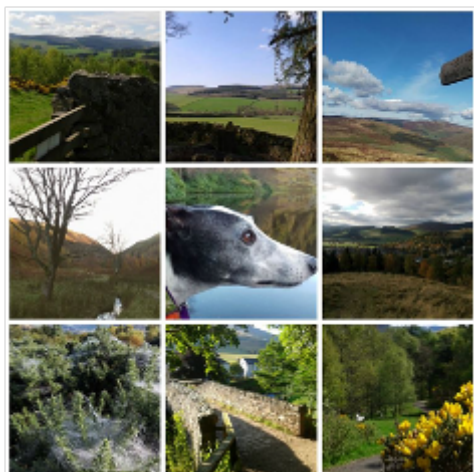

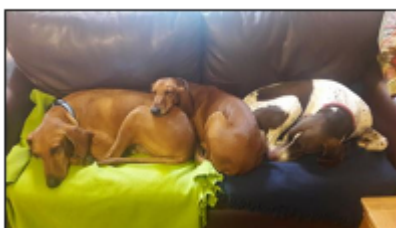

We were having a professional photo shoot. The photographer told Mummy to throw my ball and then hold me until he said to let go. But mummy couldn't hold me. She fell over and the photographer turned around and captured it.

PRODUCT REVIEW - SOFT TOY RAT

My human bought a soft toy rat from a local well known animal accessories shop .

Product:

Soft Toy Rat

Cost:

£5.99

Date Bought:

July 2018

Brief Description:

A soft toy in the shape of a rat. There is a small squeaker in the body.

Review:

Well quite unsurprisingly the actual squeaky part of the squeaker lasted mere seconds. In fact I was given the rat as I got out of the car and the squeaker was de squeaked before I reached the front door. BOL!

The rest of the toy was good to play with. It was a bit light-weight for throwing so no good for knocking things over.

The material was okay but the design was a bit flimsy as the stitching came apart with a few gentle flicks. Okay so some huge shaking! Although it was a disappointment it started falling apart with the shaking.

After a couple of days of my human sewing it back together after I barely played with it, I decided to put both it and my human out of their misery and shred the toy rat.

Rating:

2/10 Paws

To look at it was great as it looked like a rat and I thought I would have hours of fun with it.

I loved the squeaky in it until it broke.

As a soft toy is was not really well stitched together. Even with a determined lurcher playing with it, it should not have just given away at the seams so easily.

It spent more time with my human sewing it than it did with me playing with it.

I would say it is not really value for money as it does not last any reasonable length of time.

Would I buy it again?

Nope!

ANIMAL CHARITIES

SAFE HOMES AND KINDNESS - SHAK

SHAK - Safe Homes And Kindness

About:

SHAK isn't like any other dog charity, they are different because they help the dogs that really need it the most.

They are not a rehoming centre, instead they offer sanctuary to abused, mistreated and neglected dogs that have suffered so badly at the hands of humans that they need somewhere to start their lives all over again.

SHAK are a non public facing charity, meaning we are not open to the public to visit, nor do they take dogs from members of the public.

All dogs are either strays or destruction cases from vets or pounds.

SHAK do not actively seek homes for the dogs. After spending time in their care, some of the dogs move onto other more specialised rehoming Charities or fostered through their own Forever Foster scheme.

However, some are so badly damaged that the only option they have is to stay with SHAK.
